BANQUET FOR THE
GOLD MINE CLUB

Nathan Kaufman, One of The Owners of Local Department Store, Entertains for Employees.

MANY FINE TOASTS ARE GIVEN

Store Efficiency Emphasizes in Excellent Addresses—Mr. Kaufman is Toastmaster.

An elaborate five-course turkey banquet for the members of the Gold Mine Association which is composed of the clerks and employees of the Gold Mine Department Store in this city, and a number of guests representing the other stores in the syndicate, was given at six o'clock Thursday night by Nathan Kaufman, one of the owners, at his home on West Second street. All of the thirty employees of the store were present and the banquet and social hour which followed proved highly enjoyable. The appreciation of the members of the Association of the hospitality of Mr. Kaufman was very evident.

Mr. Kaufman, acting as toast master, made a short speech in welcoming the Association members and guests and then introduced the heads of the various departments who spoke relative to their work at the store. Mirth and business were combined in making the evening's program most delightful.

Charles Brandt, gave an interesting talk on the history of the Gold Mine Department Store, making mention of gradual growth from the time it started here with five clerks to the present day when thirty are employed. Mention was made by Mr. Brandt of many of the clerks who have faithfully served the firm for many years.

W. H. Hughes spoke on the subject, "It Pays To Advertise," emphasizing that advertising is essential during this quick shift of business methods. He said that it is necessary to call the attention of the public to the real values which the store has for sale and of the benefits which come to both clerk and customer. Jokes and witicism made Mr. Hughes' address very entertaining as well as instructive.

Miss Bertha Alves gave a splendid talk on, "General Views of the Store," and complimented the firm for the many improvements and suggested other improvements which the firm hopes to make during the coming year. Miss Sophia Holtman's talk was relative to market conditions today as compared to those of the past. She told how goods are advancing in price and of the difficulty experienced in getting prompt deliveries. Miss Frances Hibner gave a fine talk on "Millinery Department Efficiency," and closed with a clever original poem which was much appreciated.

Miss Emma Robinson, who has been with the store for a number of years, told how no garment looks complete without the addition of dozens of pretty buttons purchased in her department.

Everett Murray, manager of the ready-to-wear department, talked on "Competition in Ready-to-wear Garments," declaring that honest advertising and honest competition are recognized as the life of business and are appreciated by the customer. He urged truthfulness in every advertisement that appeared and said he always made it a point to back the goods advertised at the prices quoted.

Nathan Speier of the Anderson store, gave a helpful talk on the comparison of the local Association to that which has been formed in his store with double the membership. Nat Strauss, the junior member of the firm, who is at the new store in Marion as manager of the ready-to-wear department, gave a talk on the work of his department and paid the local store, the management and its clerks many compliments upon their efficiency.

Willard Everhart, of the linen department, gave a timely talk relative to the market conditions. He made Game and Fish Commissioners Working in County and Are Well Pleased With Conditions.

NO ARRESTS HAVE BEEN MADE

Three Officers Made 34 Arrests in Other Counties Last Week and Collected $800 in Fines.

Rex Whitson, of this city, F. Lapham, of Laporte, and C. R. Gilpin, of Noblesville, state game commissioners, have been spending the past week in this county looking for violators of the state fish and game laws. They have been in all parts of the county but as yet have been unable to find any law violators. The three commissioners are well pleased with conditions in this county and believe that they are to a large extent due to the co-operation that is being given by local sportsmen who are anxious to see that the fish and game laws are complied with.

The commissioners who are now scouring this county looking for violators made thirty-four arrests last week and collected for the state in fines $800. The arrests were made in Floyd, Harrison and Jefferson counties. A large portion of the arrests were due to persons hunting without a license.

One of the commissioners stated this morning that he had stopped a number of hunters in the county and

H. A. Schwab and Family and Mr. and Mrs. James Goss Have Enjoyable Overland Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan Largent have received word from H. A. Schwab who with his family and Mr. and Mrs. James Goss, left this city October 20 in an automobile truck for Whittier, Cal., stating that they had an enjoyable trip and would reach their destination last Wednesday. The letter was written from Coff, California. The letter stated that they had rainy weather the greater part of the time while making the trip. However, all of the party stood the trip well and were all enjoying usual health. Mr. Schwab in closing his letter stated that he would write further details of their trip soon.

THINK WILSON WILL VETO
RESOLUTION TO END WAR

Administration Authorities Look Up Constitutional Powers of the Executive.

By United Press

Washington, November 21—The last concurrent resolution which declared the war at an end can and will be vetoed by President Wilson in case it is passed by both house and senate in the opinion of high administration officials today. They cited the constitution to prove that the president has this power. Both came as a surprise to supporters of the Lodge resolution which was introduced in congress just before adjournment. They believed the executive had no authority to interfere with a concurrent resolution and that the Lodge measure could be passed by both houses thus ending the war without adoption of the peace treaty. Discovery of the constitutional authority which hitherto has seldom, if ever, been exercised by a president, was considered a blow to their plans.

SEYMOUR MAY GET A PACKING HOUSE

Four Men Representing Columbus Provision Company, Here Looking for Location.

PLEASSED WITH CONDITIONS

Representatives Expected to Return Here in a Few Days to Go Into Matter Further.

That Seymour may have a packing house in the near future is a possibility considering the fact that four men representing the Columbus Provision Company were in the city Thursday looking for a location. The men called on Mayor C. W. Burkari and he stated this afternoon that he had nothing definite to make public at present but did not deny that the men here yesterday were contemplating locating a plant here.

The men made a tour of the outskirts of the city Thursday afternoon and it is understood that they found several places that would make good locations for the packing house. The splendid railroad facilities offered in this city were among the factors that appealed to the packing house men in selecting Seymour as the place for establishing their plant.

The company had planned to locate in Columbus and a deal was practically completed for a tract of land and a building. However, it is understood that residents of the neighborhood where the plant was to be located objected to the city council. The council there has the matter under consideration and as yet has failed to act on it.

It was stated by one of the representatives here yesterday that his

BANK SAFE BLOWERS
TRACED TO VALLONIA

Detectives Say Men Who Cracked Safe at Jeffersonville Separated In This County.

Louisville detectives pursuing three safe blowers who looted safety vault boxes in the Jefferson County Bank at Jeffersonville Monday night found unmistakable evidence yesterday that the yeggmen had separated at Vallonia, Ind., where one boarded a train for Indianapolis.

Following the bank robbery, the trio started east in an automobile, but doubled their tracks and drove through Louisville over the K. & I. bridge through New Albany and Pekin, Ind., detectives believe.

The yeggs reached Vallonia about noon Tuesday. One, carrying two suit cases, boarded a train. The other two ordered a meal at a boarding house, leaving in an auto shortly after.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Government Enumerators Will Ask Numerous Questions in Gaining Census Information.

WORK TO START IN JANUARY

Twenty-five Enumerators to be Appointed in Jackson County—Six in This Township.

A concise history of your family will be procured next January from you, when the government takes its decennial census. Enumerators will go into every home in every hamlet, village, town and city, and into every home on the farms and ask the same questions of the household.

Announcement of the appointment of the twenty-five enumerators in Jackson county is expected during the next few days. The examination for the enumerators was held here two weeks ago under the direction of Charles B. Staff, of Franklin, district supervisor. Thirty-two took the examination.

According to the rules of the census department the enumerators will be appointed from the townships in which they live so far as possible.

This township will have six enumerators, one for each ward in the

DERAILED THIS AFTERNOON

Broken Truck on One of The Cars Causes Accident—Traffic is Held Up.

Two freight cars on a Baltimore & Ohio freight train coming into the local yards from the east were derailed near the woods two miles out at 3:30 this afternoon. The accident was caused by a broken truck on one of the cars. The local wrecking crew was called and is clearing away the debris. One of the cars was loaded with pipe and the other was empty. Traffic will be held up about two hours as a result of the wreck.

HARDING'S PLAN IS NOT APPROVED

Governor Goodrich Does Not Favor Mine Seizure Proposal of Iowa Executive.

VIEW EXPRESSED BY GARFIELD

Federal Fuel Administrator Says Such Power Could Not be Conferred at This Time.

By United Press

Indianapolis, Nov. 21—Governor James P. Goodrich will not comply with the proposal of Governor Harding, Iowa, for seizure of the coal mines, he said today. He does not consider the suggestion practical at this time, he said. Goodrich wired Harding today as follows:

"Wire just received. Will give careful consideration to your suggestion, but it occurs to me that any action along the lines suggested in your message might complicate negotiations now pending in Washington. I suggest that we defer reaching any definite conclusion of the matter until early next week and await the outcome of the conference at Washington."

Harry Garfield, federal fuel administrator, considers Governor Harding's proposal impractical, according to a statement given out at the governor's office.

Governor Goodrich made public a telegram from Garfield to Harding in which Garfield says: "It is impossible to comply with your suggestion that power to fix coal prices be conferred on you. If this were done similar requests from executives of other coal producing states could not consistently be refused and federal control which is essential in the national emergency would be lost."

Garfield told Harding that Iowa's request had been handled in accordance with "preference lists and the records show no domestic or public utility needs unfulfilled, although demands for non-essentials had been refused."

A copy of the message was sent to all governors who received a request from Governor Harding to take over the mines. The railroad administration through regional directors today issued an order providing that hereafter during the coal shortage no coal shall be supplied to anyone but railroads, the army, navy and government departments, state and county departments and institutions, public utilities and retail dealers. This order excludes manufacturers from deliveries and means they must depend upon the supply now in their coal bins.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 21—Governors of states producing soft coal today declined to endorse the proposal of Governor Harding that states seize and operate mines during the strike. Of the seven replies to the nine telegrams sent out to governors not one fully endorsed his proposition. Governors Lowden, Illinois, and Roberts, Tennessee, suggested a conference of governors be held in Chicago to discuss the coal situation. Harding said he might act on this suggestion.

TREATY MAY GET INTO CAMPAIGN

Ratification Appears To Be Shaping Itself Into Issue for Presidential Election.

FIGHT TO BE RESUMED SOON

Wilson's Letter to Hitchcock Held Responsible For Undivided Republican Support to Lodge.

By United Press

Washington, Nov. 21—Ratification of the peace treaty today appeared to be shaping itself into the big issue of the 1920 presidential election. Many prominent men of both parties here look for a finished fight before the country with the voters deciding whether the United States shall enter the league of nations and if so with what reservations. In this struggle party lines may be broken down.

Should the senate fail to ratify before the 1920 fight gets under way, there will be a clear cut issue with President Wilson possibly again forced to take the stump in support of the treaty, it was predicted.

President Wilson threw down the gauntlet when he wrote to Senator Hitchcock on the eve of the vote that the Lodge reservations would nullify the treaty. This change, according to Republican senators today, forced the entire majority party to rally around Lodge.

This is the explanation of the unbroken front which Lodge put up during the battle in the final hours of the extra session. It was known that "mild reservationists" on the Republican side were ready to support Hitchcock in certain compromise proposals, but when the president attacked Lodge, all the Republicans resolved to stick with their leader, although in some previous stages of the fight they had opposed him.

Indications today were that a bitter contest will start when the treaty comes up again next session. By its action in refusing to ratify the senate wiped the slate clean and will have to begin all over again. The treaty will go to the foreign relations committee first.

The crucial struggle will come within the committee this time, according to present plans. The treaty will not be reported out until reservations have been agreed upon which will meet the approval of two thirds of the senate. Proceedings on the senate floor will be cut and dried, it is expected. Within the committee, Republicans of the Johnson-Borah-Moses-Knox group will try to shelve the pact. The real issue at the polls according to the outlook today, will be whether the treaty is to be reported out of the committee or permitted to lie there forever. Candidates will stand for one or the other of these courses, it was predicted, and the people must decide. Meantime the nation faces months of a technical state of war with Germany.

Material for the political orators is already prepared. Speeches of Republican senators made during the last hours of the debate are to be printed and sent broadcast throughout the country as campaign material. Among these will be a speech by Senator Lenroot, Wisconsin, and others by Sterling, South Dakota; Harding, Ohio, and Kellogg, Minnesota.

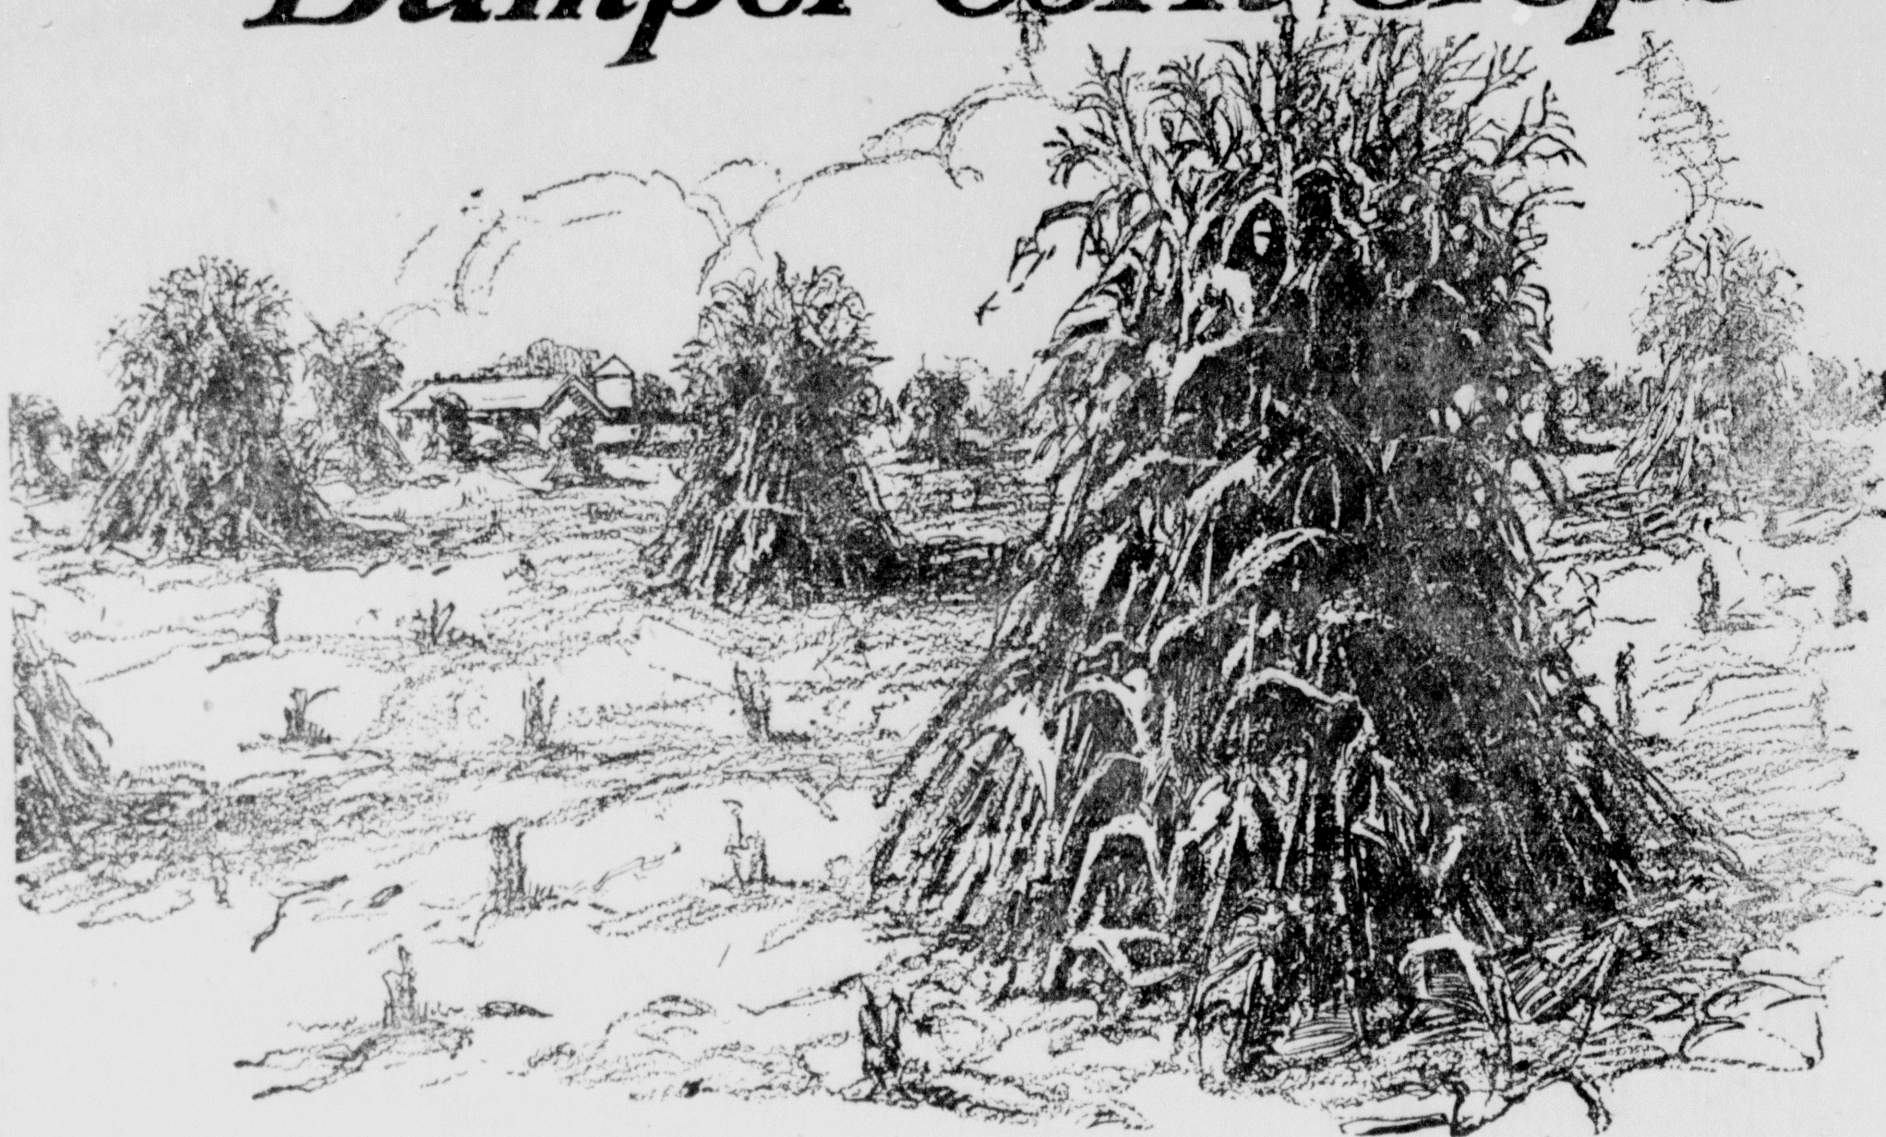

Looming in the background today are reports that thirty-five senators including three or four Democrats, are pledge to remain as the "bat-talion of death" to prevent any ratification of the treaty. This is more than one third of the senate and enough to block a two-third approval of the treaty.

WILL ASSIST VETERANS IN VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Staff of Assistant to the Secretary of War Will Assist Men In Every Possible Way.

The Office of the Assistant to the Secretary of War, formerly concerned only with jobs for service men, has entered a new field—its staff will hereafter assist all who need vocational training in every possible manner.

Major General William G. Haan, Director of the War Plans Division of the General Staff, has now directed all field representatives of that Department, engaged in soldier employment work, to give special attention to aiding disabled veterans.

This corps of representatives, under the direct supervision of Lieut. Colonel Mathew C. Smith, of the General Staff, has been in the field for over six months engaged in placing discharged service men in jobs. Their work has carried them into practically every city and community of the United States, and the connections which they have established with various industrial plants, as well as with civic and welfare organizations, and their knowledge of local conditions, will make them most valuable in aiding wounded and disabled veterans.

In commenting today on the new policy of the Department, General Haan, says, in a bulletin:

"Our field representatives have heretofore assisted the disabled men where possible, but in the future this is to be a special feature of their work.

"In some cases failure to secure vocational training with the desired promptness is due to lack of knowledge by the men; in a few cases it is due to their carelessness in the great bulk of cases the failure has been due to other causes. The changed policy of the Federal Board for Vocational Education giving district vocational officers authority to pass finally on certain classes of cases furnishes us an opportunity

The motor Truck Transportation business has been given such wide publicity through the press throughout the country, and the Ship-by-Truck idea has been boosted and endorsed by the various Chambers of Commerce, that to the people of ordinary intelligence, little explanation is necessary.

We are an Indiana Corporation. We use steel trucks, made by the Indiana Truck Company.

We use pneumatic tires exclusively. Our front tires on our five-ton trucks are 8x40 inches; our rear tires are 12x48 inches, insuring speed and safety to shipments; less injury to roads; less depreciation in tires, and the life of trucks lengthened many times.

Our company is manned by Indiana men.

Some of the most prominent bankers and business men in the state are financially interested in our institution.

We are running at present a line from Indianapolis to Chicago. This line, when fully equipped, will operate a fleet of 30 of the large steel trucks.

Three other lines or routes as fully attractive will be established and operate a similar number of trucks as fast as capital accumulates.

Large earnings are assured. Get in on something the Nation, State and Town needs, and Get In at the Beginning.

TRAIN ROBBER WIRES "THANKS" TO UNION PACIFIC

Bill Carlisle Also Drops Into Newspaper Office at Casper, Wyo., for Social Call.

By United Press
Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 21—"Bill"
Carlisle is truly grateful to the Union Pacific railroad for running trains so he can hold them up.

He said so in a telegram addressed to the "Union Pacific" here today.
The message read:

"Thanks for haul on your limited.
Some detective force."

The message was filed at Casper,
Wyo. Carlisle walked into the Western Union office there, wrote the message, left a half dollar in payment and made his getaway in an automobile.

While in town Carlisle also dropped into the office of the Casper
Press for a little chat with Editor Emmett Stapleton. The bandit inquired about the progress of the pursuit for "Carlisle" and expressed wish that "Bill" have good luck.

Carlisle was recognized at both the newspaper and the telegraph offices.

How the

Cletrac

TANK-TYPE TRACTOR

Saves Money on Road Work

FIGURE out for yourself the cost per day of, say, six of your very best horses and mules.

You will find that you have an investment of not less than $1,500 and an upkeep cost of at least $800 to $1,000 a year.

Now go over your records—see just how many days those six animals worked during the last twelve months.

Remember that those days that they did not work must be counted as dead loss.

With these figures before you, you have a fair, conservative standard with which to compare Cletrac power—for on hundreds of road jobs the Cletrac is handling more work day in and day out than six horses and six mules can handle.

And it keeps on working regardless of weather conditions, and it isn't eating up a high priced feed while idle.

The Cletrac is the only moderate-priced tractor that works successfully over the rough ground.

MRS. MARY SPRENGER DIES THIS MORNING

Highly Respected Woman Passes Away at Home on O'Brien Street After Long Illness.

Mrs. Mary Sprenger, wife of Henry Sprenger, died at the family home on South O'Brien street this morning at 7:40 following a lingering illness with a complication of diseases. The deceased was born near North Vernon July 12, 1868. She was the daughter of Thomas and Anna Riley deceased and moved to this city with her parents when quite young and had spent a greater part of her life here. She was united in marriage to Henry Sprenger May 10, 1892. To this union eight children were born, one son having died in infancy and another son, Charles Sprenger passed away six years ago.

Besides the bereaved husband the deceased is survived by six children, John, Leo, Lawrence, Helen, Riley and Kathryn, two step-children, Daniel H. and Mary Sprenger, two grand-children, Robert and Howard Sprenger, two sisters, Barbara and Elizabeth Riley and one brother, Joseph Riley together with other relatives and a large circle of friends. The deceased was a member of the St. Ambrose Catholic church. She was a loving mother and wife. The funeral will be held from the St. Ambrose Catholic church Monday morning at 9 o'clock followed with interment in the Catholic cemetery.

BANQUET FOR THE GOLD MINE CLUB

some valuable suggestions relative to methods to avoid mistakes during the Christmas rush when the clerks are anxious to serve the public in the best and quickest manner.

Miss Elizabeth Aufderheide, gave a talk on "Dresses," declaring that the garments in her department were their own advertisement as they were the best that money could buy.

William Hanauer, president of the Association, read the communications from a number of invited guests from other stores who were unable to attend the banquet. He also made brief remarks relative to the club meetings.

Several of the younger clerks furnished a pleasant surprise with their ability to give real toasts and speeches. Miss Marie Brockhoff gave a clever original poem entitled, "The Manager of a Dry Goods Store." Mr. Kaufman was the last speaker of the evening's program and gave a very interesting address relative to various matters pertaining to the business. A round of applause followed when he promised another banquet at some future date.

The dining room where the banquet was served was tastefully decorated. Gold cords wrapped with smylax were suspended from the chandelier to the pumpkin fruit baskets on the table which were filled with yellow fruit and yellow chrysanthemums tied with yellow ribbons. The place cards were hand painted and original souvenirs were given. Following the toasts some of the members enjoyed a delightful dancing program.

The guests were: Nathan Speier, Anderson; Nat Strauss, Marion; William Hannauer, Allan Hannauer, Misses Frances Hibner, Edna Banta, Elsie Massman, Amelia Schleiter, Elizabeth Aufderheide, Katherine Allen, Mary Himmeler, Maggie Colburn, Josephine Cuddahee, Marie Brockhoff, Gladys Gossett, Alice Monroe, Bertha Alwes, Pauline Meranda, Emma Robinson, Beatrice Grimes, Sophia Holman, Ruby Garis, Laura Schulte, Hilda Steinwedel, Laura Taskey, and Mrs. Grice; Messrs. W. H. Hughes, B. F. Gillman, Ira Harlow, Willard Everhart, Charles Brandt, John Himmeler, Everett Murray, Arthur Kaufman, Sidney Gibson and Tom Dawson.

A feature of the evening's program was a reading entitled "Boost," which was given by Arthur Kaufman. The reading shows just how the members of the Gold Mine Association feel about their store, their city and every other good movement, and the clerks asked that the two paragraphs be published:

Boost your city, boost your friend;

Boost the association that you attend.

Boost the street on which you're dwelling.

Boost the goods that you are selling;

Boost the people count about you.

They can get along without you; But success will quicker find them If they know that you're behind them.

Boost for every forward movement.

Boost for every new improvement.

Boost the man for whom you labor,

Boost the stranger and the neighbor.

Cease to be a chronic knocker.

Cease to be a progress blocker;

If you'd make your city better,

Boost it to the final letter.

CHAPTER I.

At Old Fort Armstrong.

It was the early springtime, and my history tells me the year was 1832, although now that seems so far away I almost hesitate to write the date. It appears surprising that through the haze of all those intervening years—intensely active years with me—I should now be able to recall so clearly the scene of that far-off morning of my youth, and depict in memory each minor detail. Yet, as you read on, and realize yourself the stirring events resulting from that idle moment, you may be able to comprehend the deep impression left upon my mind, which no cycle of time could ever erase.

I was barely twenty then, a strong, almost headstrong boy, and the far wilderness was still very new to me, although for two years past I had held army commission and been assigned to duty in frontier forts. Yet never previously had I been stationed at quite so isolated an outpost of civilization as was this combination of rock and log defense erected at the southern extremity of Rock Island, fairly marooned amid the sweep of the great river, with Indian-haunted land stretching for leagues on every side. A mere handful of troops was quartered there, technically two companies of infantry, yet numbering barely enough for one; and this in spite of rumors daily drifting to us that the Sacs and Foxes, with their main village just below, were already becoming restless and warlike, inflamed by the slow approach of white settlers into the valley of the Rock. Indeed, so short was the garrison of officers, that the harassed commander had ventured to retain me for field service, in spite of the fact that I was detailed to staff duty, had borne dispatches up the Mississippi from General Gaines and expected to return again by the first boat.

The morning was one of deep-blue sky and bright sunshine. As soon as early drill ended I had left the fort enclosure and sought a lonely perch on the great rock above the mouth of the cave. Below, extended a magnificent river, fully a mile wide from shore to shore, unbroken in its vast sweep toward the sea except for a few small willow-studded islands a mile or two away. Over there, in the near shadow of the Rock Valley, was where Black Hawk, dissatisfied, revengeful, dwelt with his British band, gathering swiftly about him the younger, fighting warriors of every tribe his influence could reach. He had been at the fort but two days before, a tall, straight, taciturn Indian; no chief by birth, yet a born leader of men, defiant in speech and insolent of demeanor in spite of the presence also at the council of his people's true representative, the silent, cautious Keokuk.

Even with my small knowledge of such things it was plain enough to be seen there existed deadly hatred between these two, and that Keokuk's desire for peace with the whites alone postponed an outbreak. Already tales reached us of encroaching settlers advancing along the valley, and of savage, retaliating raids which could only terminate in armed encounters. That Keokuk could continue to control his people no longer seemed probable to me, for the Hawk was evidently the stronger character of the two, possessed the larger following and made no attempt to conceal the depth of his hatred for all things American.

Down below where I sat a little river steambot was tied to the wharf, a dingy stern-wheeler, with the word "Warrior" painted across the pilot house. My eyes and thoughts turned that way. Standing alone together near the stern were a heavily-built man with white hair and beard, and a younger, rather slender fellow, with clipped, black mustache. Both were unusually well dressed, the latter exceedingly natty and fashionable in attire, rather overly so, I thought, while the former wore a long coat and high white stock. Involuntarily I had placed them in my mind as river gamblers, but was still observing their movements with some curiosity when Captain Throckmorton crossed the gangplank and began ascending the steep bluff. The path to be followed led directly past where I was sitting and, recognizing me, he stopped to exchange greetings.

"What! have you finished your day's work already, lieutenant?" he exclaimed pleasantly. "Mine has only just begun."

"So I observe. It was garrison talk last night that the Warrior was to depart at daylight."

"That was the plan. However, the Wanderer went north during the night," he explained, "and brought mail from below, so we are being held for the return letters. I am going up to the office now."

My eyes returned to the scene below.

"You have some passengers aboard."

"A few; picked up several at the lead mines, besides those aboard from Prairie du Chien."

"Evidently all of your passengers are not miners, captain," I ventured. "Those two standing there at the stern, for instance."

He turned and looked. "No," he said; "that big man is Judge Beaucaire, from Missouri. He has a plantation just above St. Louis, an old French grant. Of course you know the younger one."

"Never saw him before."

"Then you have never traveled much on the lower river. That's Joe Kirby."

"Joe Kirby?"

"Certainly; you must have heard of him. First time I ever knew of his drifting so far north, as there are not many pickings up here. Have rather suspected he might be laying for Beaucaire, but the two haven't touched a card coming down."

"He is a gambler, then?"

"A thoroughbred; works between St. Louis and New Orleans. I can't just figure out yet what he is doing up here. I asked him flat out, but he only laughed, and he isn't the sort of man you get very friendly with, some say he has Indian blood in him, so I dropped it. He and the judge seem pretty thick, and they may be playing in their rooms. See you again before we leave; am going up now to have a talk with the major."

My eyes followed as he disappeared within the open gates, a squatly, strongly built figure, the blue smoke from his pipe circling in a cloud above his head. Then I turned idly to gaze once again down the river and observe the groups loitering below.

Assuredly it was none of my affair, and yet a certain curiosity caused me to observe the movements of the two so long as they remained on deck. However, it was but a short while before both retired to the cabin, and then my gaze returned once more to the sullen sweep of water, while my thoughts drifted far away.

A soldier was within a few feet of me and had spoken before I was even aware of his approach.

"Lieutenant Knox."

I looked about quickly, recognizing the major's orderly.

"Yes, Sanders, what is it?"

"Major Bliss requests, sir, that you report at his office at once."

Wondering what might be desired of me, yet with no conception of the reality, I followed after the orderly through the stockade gate, and across the small parade ground toward the more pretentious structure occupied by the officers of the garrison.

A number of soldiers off duty were loitering in front of the barracks, while a small group of officers occupied chairs on the log porch of their quarters, enjoying the warmth of the sun. I greeted these as I passed, conscious that their eyes followed me curiously as I approached the commandant's office. Major Bliss glanced up at my entrance, with deep-set eyes hidden beneath bushy gray eyebrows, his smooth-shaven face appearing almost youthful in contrast with a wealth of gray hair.

"How long have you been here at Armstrong, lieutenant?" he questioned, toying with an official-looking paper in his hands.

"Only about three weeks, sir. I came north on the Enterprise, with dispatches from General Gaines."

"I remember; you belong to the Fifth, and without orders, I promptly draughted you into garrison service." His eyes laughed. "Only sorry I cannot hold you any longer. It seems you have an application pending for a furlough."

"Yes, sir."

"It is my pleasure to inform you that it has been granted—sixty days, with permission to proceed east. There has been considerable delay evidently in locating you."

A sudden vision arose before me of my mother's face and of the old home among the hills as I took the paper from his extended hands and glanced at the printed and written lines.

"The date is a month ago."

"That need not trouble you, Knox. The furlough begins with this delivery. However, as I shall require your services as far as St. Louis, I shall date this acceptance from the time of your arrival there."

"Which is very kind, sir."

"Not at all. You have proven of considerable assistance here, and I shall part from you with regret. I have letters for Governor Clark of Missouri and Governor Reynolds of Illinois; also one to General Atkinson at Jefferson barracks, detailing my views on the present Indian situation. These are confidential, and I hesitate to intrust them to the regular mail service. I had intended sending them down river in charge of a noncommissioned officer, but shall now utilize your services instead—that is if you are willing to assume their care?"

"Very gladly, of course."

"I thought as much. Each of these is to be delivered in person. Captain Throckmorton informs me that he will be prepared to depart within an hour. You can be ready in that time?"

I smiled.

"In much less. I have little with me but a field kit, sir. It will not require long to pack that."

"Then return here at the first whistle and the letters will be ready for you. That will be all now. Travel as a civilian if you please, Lieutenant, but I suggest it will be well to wear the uniform of your rank when you deliver the letters."

Fifteen minutes sufficed to gather together all my belongings and change from blue into gray, and, as I emerged from quarters, the officers of the garrison flocked about me with words of congratulation and innumerable questions. Universal envy of my good fortune was evident, but this assumed no unpleasant form, although much was said to express their belief in my early return.

I shook hands all around, and left them, hastening across the parade to the office. Ten minutes later I crossed the gangplank and put foot for the first time on the deck of the Warrior. Evidently the crew had been awaiting my arrival to push off, for instantly the whistle shrieked again, and immediately after the boat began to churn its way out into the river current, with bow pointing down stream. Throckmorton leaned out from the open window of the pilot house and hailed me.

"Put your dunnage in the third cabin, Knox—here, you, Sam, lay hold and help."

It was nothing to boast of, that third cabin, being a mere hole, measuring possibly about four feet by seven, but sufficient for sleeping quarters, and was reasonably clean. It failed, however, in attractiveness sufficient to keep me below, and as soon as I had deposited my bag and indulged in a somewhat captious scrutiny of the bedding I very willingly returned to the outside and clambered up a steep ladder to the upper deck.

Judge Beaucaire was standing at the low rail. Our eyes met inquiringly, and he bowed with all the ceremony of the old school.

"A new passenger on board, I think, sir," and his deep, resonant voice left a pleasant impression. "You must have joined our company at Fort Armstrong?"

"Your supposition is correct," I answered, some peculiar constraint preventing me from referring to my military rank. "My name is Knox, and I have been about the island for a few weeks. I believe you are Judge Beaucaire of Missouri?"

He was a splendidly proportioned man, with deep chest, great breadth of shoulders and strong individual face, yet bearing unmistakable signs of dissipation, together with numerous marks of both care and age.

"I feel the honor of your recognition, sir," he said with dignity. "Knox, I believe you said? Of the Knox family at Cape Girardeau, may I inquire?"

"No connection to my knowledge; my home was at Wheeling."

"Ah! I have never been that far east; indeed the extent of my travels along the beautiful Ohio has only been to the Falls. The Beaucaires were originally from Louisiana."

"You must have been among the earlier settlers of Missouri?"

"Before the Americans came, sir," proudly. "My grandfather arrived at Beaucaire Landing during the old French regime; but doubtless you know all this?"

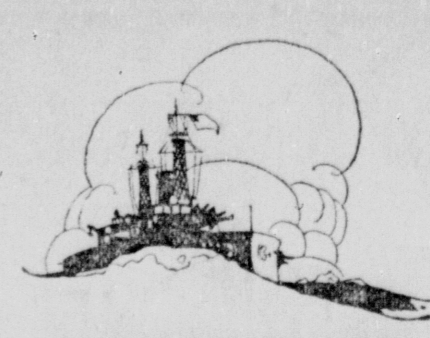

"No, judge," I answered, recognizing the egotism of the man but believing frankness to be the best policy. "This happens to be my first trip on the upper river, and I merely chanced to know your name because you had been pointed out to me by Captain Throckmorton. I understood from him that you represented one of the oldest families in that section."

"There were but very few here before us," he answered with undisguised pride. "My grandfather's grant of land was from the king, Alphonse de Beaucaire, sir, was the trusted lieutenant of D'Iberville—a soldier and a gentleman."

I bowed in acknowledgment, the family arrogance of the man but interesting me deeply. So evident was this pride that this might be all the man had left—this memory of the past.

"The history of those early days is not altogether familiar to me," I admitted regretfully. "But surely D'Iberville must have ruled Louisiana more than one hundred years ago?"

The judge smiled.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Model T One Ton Truck with its manganese bronze worm-drive is really a necessity for the farmer because it solves his problem of economic transportation from the farm to the city. And in farm work alone, it will be found a great money saver as well as a big labor saver. Has all the merits of the Ford car multiplied by greater capacity with greater strength. No extra cost in operation. We'd like to talk it over with every farmer. Pneumatic or solid tires.

"Quite true. This grant of ours was practically his last official act. Alphonse de Beaucaire took possession in 1712, one hundred and twenty years ago, sir. I was myself born at Beaucaire sixty-eight years ago."

"I should have guessed you as ten years younger. And the estate still remains in its original grant?"

The smile of condescension deserted his eyes, and his thin lips pressed tightly together.

"I—I regret not; many of the later years have proven disastrous in the extreme," he admitted, hesitatingly. "You will pardon me, sir, if I decline to discuss misfortune. Ah, Monsieur Kirby! I have been awaiting you. Have you met with this young man who came aboard at Fort Armstrong? I—I am unable to recall the name."

I felt the firm, strong grip of the other's hand, and looked straight into his dark eyes. They were like a mask. The face was long, firm-jawed, slightly swarthy, a tightly clipped black mustache shadowing the upper lip. It was a reckless face, yet appeared carved from marble.

"Exceedingly pleased to meet you," he said carelessly. "Rather a dull lot on board—miners and such cattle. Bound for St. Louis?"

"Yes—and beyond."

"Shall see more of you then. Well, judge, how do you feel? Carver and McAfee are waiting for us down below."

The two disappeared together down the ladder and I was again left alone in my occupancy of the upper deck.

HER DAUGHTER WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—"For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and telling everybody how much good it has done her."

—Mrs. W. D. WELLS, 226 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Wells did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, headache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

COAL IS RATIONED IN MANY PLACES

Curtailment of Train Service is Probable if Fuel Shortage Continues Long.

DEBATE ON SCALE IN PROGRESS

Rail Director Hines Also Considering Nationwide Freight Embargo—Harding's Proposal.

By United Press

While coal miners and operators debated in Washington on a wage scale several sections of the country, particularly the southwest and middle west, were facing an increasingly serious situation today as a result of the fuel shortage.

Curtailment of train service, abandonment of non-essential industries, rationing of reserve supplies and re-establishment of lightless nights were being resorted to in an effort to conserve the diminishing coal supply. In many places only a few days' reserve remains. Above all was the danger of a nationwide freight embargo, admitted by Rail Director Hines to be a possibility should the situation show no improvement within a month.

Meanwhile, the proposal of Governor Harding, Iowa, that the chief executives of bituminous coal producing states seize and operate the mines in an effort to bring about production of coal was meeting with varied responses. Governor Cox, Ohio, in a message to the United Press, supported Harding's proposal, while Governor Cornwall, West Virginia, believed it would be playing into the hands of the radicals, and Governor Strout, of Pennsylvania, regarded such action as unconstitutional.
